

Boxing Day Greetings from Iguazu

Hi All,

After an unexpected extended stay in Ushuaia, it's off to Buenos Aeries tomorrow (27th here) to organise getting some stuff home and then off to Iguazu Falls.

I've just booked my accommodation in Iguazu on-line, so fingers crossed this net thing works, eh ! After that, it may just be easier to arrive at an airport and wait to see what accommodation is offered at the taxi ranks. Christmas and New Years seems to a tough time to get descent accommodation.

Anyway, I hope you all had a really GREAT Christmas Gig where ever you were. Mine was pretty bloody good. I spent it with the family that owns the Hostel. They invited me to their 'present giving' time. So that was pretty neat. And pretty special too that they invited me to be a part of it. After that it off to a 'Club' in Ushuaia. Apart from feeling a bit old for the place, I was nearly squished in the line as there appeared to be no crowd controllers and the only way into the club was literally PUSH and shove all the way through to the front door. I had visions of a mosh pit nights gone wrong...

So far, New years is in Peurto Iguazu in Sumaj Youth Hostel. I figure flights may be easier to get after New Years if I want to continue on to Rio for Volleyball. I need to get back into travel mode again.

I'll see how arrangements go for Easter Island. A quick look through accommodation makes a single night look like The National Debt ! Availability on-line looks scarce at the moment too. Doh !

As for diving in Bonito, I'm not too sure yet. I'm not all that keen on diving in a place where there's a risk bugs can crawl up the end of your dick. Ew ! Not the go.

Anyway, take it easy and catch up soon.

See ya !

Brendan
